STATEMENT OF INTEREST¹

Formed in 1973, Lambda Legal Defense and Education Fund, Inc. is the nation's oldest and largest legal organization committed to achieving full recognition of the civil rights of lesbian, gay, bisexual, and transgender ("LGBT") people and everyone living with HIV through impact litigation, education, and public policy work. Lambda Legal has served as counsel or amicus in seminal cases regarding the rights of LGBT people and people living with HIV. See, e.g., Obergefell v. Hodges, 135 S.Ct. 2584 (2015); United States v. Windsor, 133 S.Ct. 2675 (2013); Lawrence v. Texas, 539 U.S. 558 (2003); Bragdon v. Abbott, 524 U.S. 624 (1998); Romer v. Evans, 517 U.S. 620 (1996).

Of special relevance here, Lambda Legal successfully represented the plaintiff-appellant in Hively v. Ivy Tech Community College, 853 F.3d 339 (7th Cir. 2017), in which the Seventh Circuit recently held en banc "that discrimination on the basis of sexual orientation is a form of sex discrimination." Id. at 339. It has also served as counsel or amicus curiae in many other employment discrimination cases involving the rights of LGBT people. See, e.g., Evans v. Georgia Reg'l Hosp., 850 F.3d 1248 (11th Cir. 2017), pet. for reh'g en banc pending; Glenn v. Brumby, 663 F.3d 1312 (11th Cir. 2011); Rene v. MGM Grand Hotel, 305 F.3d 1061 (9th Cir. 2002) (en banc); EEOC v. Scott Med. Health Ctr., P.C., No. 16-cv-225, 2016 WL 6569233 (W.D. Pa. Nov. 4, 2016); Hall v. BNSF Ry. Co., No. C13-2160, 2014 WL 4719007 (W.D. Wash. Sept. 22, 2014); TerVeer v. Billington, 34 F.Supp.3d 100 (D.D.C. 2014).

¹*Amicus* certifies that no party's counsel authored this brief in whole or in part, and no person other than Amicus, its members, or its counsel made a monetary contribution to the preparation or submission of this brief. Fed. R. App. P. 29(a)(4)(E); L.R. 29.1(b).

Amicus's counsel assisted with the preparation of the petition for rehearing en banc in Zarda v. Altitude Express, No. 15-3775 (2d Cir. May 2, 2017); this brief, however, reflects solely the work of Amicus's counsel.

Amicus thus brings a unique perspective and unmatched experience regarding the question of Title VII's application to claims of sexual orientation discrimination. Thus, should the Court believe it would be aided by oral argument from an amicus experienced with en banc argument on the issue in this case or a related case raising the same issue, Lambda Legal would be willing to present oral argument. See Fed. R. App. P. 29(a)(8).

All parties have consented to the filing of this brief. Fed. R. App. P. 29(b)(2).

THE ISSUE MERITING EN BANC CONSIDERATION

In enacting Title VII, 42 U.S.C. § 2000e et seq., Congress established a statutory imperative to extinguish discrimination in employment “because of . . . sex.” 42 U.S.C. § 2000e-2(a)(1). While some lower courts have hesitated to give these words their full meaning, the Supreme Court has not. The Supreme Court has broadly and consistently condemned “sex-based” discrimination in the workplace, recognizing that Title VII was “intended to strike at the entire spectrum of disparate treatment of men and women resulting from sex stereotypes.” Price Waterhouse v. Hopkins, 490 U.S. 228, 251 (1989).

Now, this Court sitting en banc must decide whether Title VII’s prohibition against sex discrimination encompasses sexual orientation discrimination claims. The panel in this case, like the panel in Zarda v. Altitude Express, No. 15-3775, 2017 WL 1378932, at *2 (2d Cir. Apr. 18, 2017), felt bound by Simonton v. Runyon, 232 F.3d 33 (2d Cir. 2000), and Dawson v. Bumble & Bumble, 398 F.3d 211 (2d Cir. 2005), and thus ruled that Title VII allows the firing of men, but not women, who are attracted to men, even though neither Simonton nor Dawson—nor any other opinion of this Court—has addressed the multiple “persuasive” reasons that support a holding that Title VII’s bar on sex discrimination encompasses anti-gay discrimination. See Christiansen v. Omnicom Grp., Inc., 852 F.3d 195, 202 (2d Cir. 2017) (Katzmann, C.J., concurring). Only this full Court, convening en banc, can now overrule Simonton and Dawson and bring this Court’s caselaw into compliance with Title VII’s statutory mandate to “treat[] each of the enumerated categories exactly the same,” Price Waterhouse, 490 U.S. at 244 n.9, and the Court’s obligation to entertain all claims alleging adverse treatment in employment based on “sex-based considerations.” Id. at 242.

The panel's adherence to Simonton perpetuated a "longstanding tension in Title VII caselaw," Zarda, 2017 WL 1378932, at *2, and conflicts with multiple decisions of the Supreme Court, e.g., Oncale v. Sundowner Offshore Servs., 523 U.S. 75 (1998); Price Waterhouse, 490 U.S. 228; City of Los Angeles Dep't of Water & Power v. Manhart, 435 U.S. 702 (1978), and of this Court, e.g., Holcomb v. Iona Coll., 521 F.3d 130 (2d Cir. 2008); Back v. Hastings on Hudson Union Free Sch. Dist., 365 F.3d 107 (2d Cir. 2004).

Furthermore, whether Title VII's prohibition on sex discrimination protects employees from sexual orientation discrimination is a question of exceptional importance. The en banc Seventh Circuit, the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission, and this Court's Chief Judge all agree that sexual orientation discrimination is a form sex discrimination. See Hively, 853 F.3d at 345-59; Christiansen, 852 F.3d at 207 (Katzmann, C.J., concurring); Baldwin v. Foxx, Appeal No. 0120133080, 2015 WL 4397641 (EEOC July 16, 2015). And a majority of the panel that decided Simonton nearly two decades ago believes the issue warrants reconsideration. See Christiansen, 852 F.3d at 207 (Katzmann, C.J., concurring); Oral Arg. at 11:06, Zarda, 2017 WL 1378932 (Sacks, J.), available at <http://files.eqcf.org/cases/15-3775-oral-argument-audio/>.

ARGUMENT

I. WHETHER TITLE VII FORBIDS SEXUAL ORIENTATION DISCRIMINATION IS A QUESTION OF EXCEPTIONAL IMPORTANCE.

The Court’s disposition of this matter will affect not only the rights of Mr. Christiansen and the plaintiffs in two other pending petitions regarding the same issue,² but also the rights of countless others who may face sex discrimination in the form of sexual orientation discrimination but who may not, under Simonton and Dawson, access Title VII’s broad redress—including remedies unavailable even under state laws expressly prohibiting “sexual orientation” discrimination. See, e.g., Tomick v. United Parcel Serv., Inc., 153 A.3d 615, 625 (Conn. 2016); Thoreson v. Penthouse Intern., Ltd., 606 N.E.2d 1369, 1373 (N.Y. 1992); see also Lightfoot v. Union Carbide Corp., 110 F.3d 898, 914 (2d Cir. 1997).³ Moreover, many LGB persons may well not be subject to such discrimination if this Court sends a clear message that Title VII prohibits it.

² See Pet. for Reh’g En Banc, Zarda, No. 15-3775; Pet. for Hearing En Banc, Cargian v. Breitling USA, Inc., No. 16-3592 (2d Cir. Apr. 19, 2017).

This Court's caselaw carving out LGB people from Title VII's full protections from sex-based discrimination is out-of-step with other federal courts' increasing recognition that sexual orientation discrimination "is a form of sex discrimination." Hively, 853 F.3d at 341. See, e.g., Philpott v. New York, No. 16-cv-6778, 2017 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 67591 (S.D.N.Y. May 3, 2017); Winstead v. Lafayette Cty. Bd. of Cty. Comm'rs, 197 F.Supp.3d 1334 (N.D. Fla. 2016); Scott Med. Health Ctr., 2016 WL 6569233; Isaacs v. Felder Servs., LLC, 143 F.Supp.3d 1190 (M.D. Ala. 2015); Videckis v. Pepperdine Univ., 150 F.Supp.3d 1151 (C.D. Cal. 2015); Terveer, 34 F.Supp.3d 100; Boutillier v. Hartford Pub. Sch., No. 13-cv-1303, 2014 WL 4794527 (D. Conn. Sept. 25, 2014).

Across the country, federal circuit judges have increasingly recognized that whether Title VII forbids sexual orientation discrimination as a form of sex discrimination is a question of exceptional importance that merits consideration by their full courts. For one, in his concurrence here, Chief Judge Katzmann contends that the full Court should "revisit the central legal issue confronted in Simonton and Dawson, especially in light of the changing legal landscape that has taken shape in the nearly two decades since Simonton issued." Christiansen, 852 F.3d at 202. And Judge Sack has declared that "there is no question that th[e] question is ripe for visitation." Oral Arg. at 11:06, Zarda, 2017 WL 1378932 (Sack, J.). Notably, Chief Judge Katzmann and Judge Sack comprise a majority of the panel that decided Simonton.

Similarly, a majority of the Seventh Circuit voted to grant en banc review of a panel decision that was compelled by existing precedent in holding Title VII inapplicable to sexual orientation discrimination based on the importance of the issue. See Hively, 853 F.3d at 343 (noting the court “voted to rehear th[e] case en banc” “[i]n light of the importance of the issue”); id. at 359 (Sykes, J., dissenting) (describing case as “momentous”). An Eleventh Circuit judge has also urged her court to consider the issue en banc, and a petition for en banc rehearing is now pending there. See Evans, 850 F.3d at 1271 (Rosenbaum, J., dissenting).

Thus, the question of whether Title VII forbids sexual orientation discrimination is one of exceptional importance that merits en banc consideration.

II. EN BANC REVIEW IS WARRANTED BECAUSE SEXUAL ORIENTATION DISCRIMINATION IS A FORM OF SEX DISCRIMINATION.

The panel in this case reached a legally flawed result that conflicts with Supreme Court precedent, see Christiansen, 852 F.3d at 201, even though a majority of the panel recognized that sexual orientation discrimination is a form of sex discrimination. Id. at 202-206. The panel concluded that it “lack[ed] the power to reconsider Simonton and Dawson.” Id. at 199. This Court sitting en banc needs to right this wrong.

In his concurrence, Chief Judge Katzmann (joined by District Judge Brodie) agreed that sexual orientation discrimination is a form of sex discrimination, because such discrimination treats otherwise similarly-situated people differently because of their sex, viewed in relation to the sex of the individuals with whom they associate and because such discrimination is inherently rooted in gender stereotypes. Id. at 202-206. He urged this full Court to “consider reexamining the holding that sexual orientation discrimination claims are not cognizable under Title VII,” as “[n]either Simonton nor Dawson had occasion to consider the[] worthy approaches,” endorsed by other courts. Id. at 207. He did so because the “three arguments” “reflect the evolving legal landscape since [this] Court’s decisions in Simonton . . . and Dawson” and because a faithful application of Oncale dictates that “there is ‘no justification in the statutory language . . . for a categorical rule excluding’” sexual orientation discrimination from Title VII’s coverage. Id. at 202, 207.

Similarly, in its decision in Hively, the Seventh Circuit not only endorsed each of the same three arguments for coverage, see 853 F.3d at 345-49; it also noted the flaw in contrary decisions that have emphasized what words are not in the statute, rather than “the scope of the language that already is in the statute,” id. at 344. That is because focusing on non-statutory considerations contravenes Oncale, where Justice Scalia, writing for a unanimous court, emphasized that “it is ultimately the provisions of our laws rather than the principal concerns of our legislators by which we are governed.” 523 U.S. at 79.

Chief Judge Katzmann and Hively found persuasive the following three arguments:

First, “sexual orientation discrimination is sex discrimination for the simple reason that such discrimination treats otherwise similarly-situated people differently solely because of their sex.” Christiansen, 852 F.3d at 202 (Katzmann, C.J., concurring). Thus, where an employer fires a female employee because the employee is married to (or lives with, dates, or is attracted to) a woman but would not fire a male employee for identical conduct with (or attraction to) a woman, the employer has engaged in “paradigmatic sex discrimination.” Hively, 853 F.3d at 345.

Second, sexual orientation discrimination is sex discrimination because it treats otherwise similarly-situated people differently because of their sex, viewed in relation to the sex of the individuals with whom they associate (or to whom they are attracted). Christiansen, 852 F.3d at 204 (Katzmann, C.J., concurring). See also Hively, 853 F.3d at 347-48; id. at 359 (Flaum, J., concurring).

Third, sexual orientation discrimination is sex “because such discrimination is inherently rooted in gender stereotypes.” Christiansen, 852 F.3d at 205 (Katzmann, C.J., concurring). Indeed, an individual’s same-sex attraction “represents the ultimate case of failure to conform to [a sex] stereotype (at least as understood in a place such as modern America, which views heterosexuality as the norm and other forms of sexuality as exceptional).” Hively, 853 F.3d at 346; see also Christiansen, 852 F.3d at 205 (Katzmann, C.J., concurring).

III. CONSIDERATION EN BANC IS IN KEEPING WITH THE COURT’S INTERESTS AND WOULD FACILITATE OPTIMAL DECISIONMAKING.

Given the extraordinary importance of the issue, en banc review should be granted because this petition, as well as those in Cargian and Zarda, fits squarely within the institutional concerns underlying this Court’s practice and standards regarding such review.

There are no institutional interests served where no panel of the Court has ever had—nor ever will have, in the absence of en banc review—an opportunity to fully consider the arguments, presented here and in the petition, regarding the scope of a central provision of one of the nation’s most significant civil rights statutes. See Christiansen, 852 F.3d at 202 (Katzmann, C.J., concurring). And en banc review here is in keeping with the desire to foster collegiality among the Court’s judges and to establish respect for the role of panels in establishing circuit precedent, where, as here, a majority of the judges that decided Simonton have declared that the issue merits revisiting.

The Court should not rely on the possibility of Supreme Court review,⁴ when certiorari review is so rarely granted and it is this Court's cases that have helped shaped the caselaw on this issue. See, e.g., Medina v. Income Support Div., 413 F.3d 1131, 1135 (10th Cir. 2005) (citing Simonton); Bibby v. Phila. Coca-Cola Bottling Co., 260 F.3d 257, 265 (3d Cir. 2001) (same); see also Vickers v. Fairfield Med. Ctr., 453 F.3d 757, 763-64 (6th Cir. 2006) (citing Dawson). Rather than delay the possibility of justice any further, this Court should follow the path charted by the Seventh Circuit in Hively and resolve the issue itself.⁵

CONCLUSION

Therefore, Amicus Lambda Legal respectfully urges the Court to grant en banc review and hold that sexual orientation discrimination is a form of sex discrimination prohibited by Title VII.
